

Instructions for completing*Application for leave to be represented*Some parties do not need to complete this form

Some parties do not need the permission of the tribunal to be represented and do not need to complete this form.

If you are:

- a child or a person with impaired capacity, or
- a party to a disciplinary proceeding, including a review of a disciplinary decision, or
- a party to a proceeding where an enabling Act or the Rules states that a party may be represented you do not need to complete this form because you have a right to be represented by an Australian legal practitioner or a government legal officer.

However, if you want someone else to represent you (who is not an Australian legal practitioner or a government legal officer), you may need to explain to the tribunal why your representative is appropriate to represent you.

Your representative cannot be a person who is disqualified from being a representative of a party in the tribunal.

Entities seeking leave to appear should not complete this form

Appearing in a proceeding is different from and separate to representation in a proceeding.

Some entities, such as State agencies, corporations, associations, partnerships and trusts, can only appear in the tribunal through specified people. In certain circumstances, those entities may need permission from the tribunal to appear through a person who is an Australian legal practitioner or government legal officer.

An entity seeking permission to appear through a person who is an Australian legal practitioner or government legal officer should not complete this form.

Instead, the entity should write to the tribunal setting out the names of the parties, the case number, the name of the person they propose to appear for them, the person's position in the entity, and the reasons why leave should be given for the entity to appear through the person.
